Established in 1939, R&S Robertson has stood as an enduring beacon of excellence in the realm of decorative lighting for over eight decades. Our rich history is steeped in a legacy of craftsmanship and innovation, forging a path illuminated by an unwavering dedication to the art of enhancing and illuminating hospitality and leisure spaces.

In celebration of our remarkable journey, we proudly introduce “85 by R&S.” This collection, aptly named to commemorate our 85th year of crafting exquisite decorative lighting, serves as a harmonious fusion of two timeless design paradigms: the graceful minimalism of modern aesthetics and the opulent allure of the Art Deco era in which R&S Robertson was forged.

Each piece in this collection is not only a testament to our cherished heritage but also a vibrant reflection of our steadfast commitment to pushing the boundaries of design and elegance.

The collection is proudly designed and manufactured on a project-by-project basis in Europe. This allows specifiers the complete flexibility of being able to customise dimensions, finishes and materials to suit any interior space, with the comfort that delivery lead times will be minimised to suit the project timescales.

The Art of Balancing Aesthetics, Functionality, and Manufacturability.

Our journey as designers is a dynamic quest to evoke and discover the personality of every product, striving to strike the balance between aesthetics, functionality, and manufacturability.

With the 85 collection, we believe we’ve not only achieved this goal but also crafted a range that doesn’t just elevate spaces but also evokes heart-warming smiles from those who engage with it.

The inspiration for this range has been ignited by vibrant conversations with passionate individuals who wholeheartedly share their love for architecture, interior design, and manufacturing. The range draws its creative inspiration from the lively fusion of people, places, and the timeless allure of Art Deco.

A special thanks to R&S Robertson for entrusting us with this endeavour.
